

Consortium for Culture and Medicine

January 16-May 9, 2018

A Cooperative Program of

Le Moyne College

Upstate Medical University

Syracuse University

Culture and Reproductive Health and Medicine

Mondays 3:45-6:30 pm

TBD

SU Campus

Cecilia Van Hollen, PhD. Cultural anthropological approaches to cross-cultural variations in reproductive practices (pregnancy childbirth, infertility, etc.) Impact of globalization, bio medicalization, international development on reproduction and reproductive health.

Medical Anthropology in Ecological Perspectives

Mondays/Wednesdays 2:15-3:35PM

Crouse Hinds 020

SU Campus

John Townsend, PhD. This course utilizes an ecological, cross-cultural perspective. Students will learn: to apply an ecological perspective to illness in foreign and domestic cultures; derive useful practices and knowledge from non-Western societies and ethnic sub-cultures and demonstrate how they could be adapted and utilized in mainstream Western healing, describe the role of socio-cultural factors in the etiology, manifestation, and outcome of diseases cross-culturally; analyze the strengths and weaknesses of non-Western methods of healing.

Public Health Ethics

Wednesdays, 5:15-8:00PM

TBD

SU Campus

Sandra Lane, PhD. This course addresses ethical issues in public health. Public health ethics is a new area of scholarship practice that addresses population-level health issues, such as issues food stamps and health insurance, immunizations, public health research, legal and policy responses to infectious diseases and epidemics, and the role of religious and social values in setting health policy

Eligibility:

CCM courses are open to upper division undergraduates, graduate students, and faculty from the cooperating institutions and members of the public, of the public. For members of the public permission of the instructor is required

Registration Information: Le Moyne students www.lemoyne.edu Upstate Medical University students: www.upstate.edu/ccm
Syracuse University students: www.syr.edu

Members of the public can register through any of the three institutions.