

EXCEPTIONAL MOMENTS IN TEACHING

The Norton College of Medicine recognizes exceptional teachers with the monthly “Exceptional Moments in Teaching” program. Honorees are selected via student assessments from courses and clerkships. Recognized teachers—including medical faculty, residents, nurses and other educators—are those who challenge students and provide an exceptional learning experience.

Joshua Bonville, MD, assistant professor of Pediatrics at Upstate Medical University, is the September 2022 recipient of the Exceptional Moments in Teaching Recognition.

COMMENTS FROM DR. BONVILLE’S STUDENTS:

“Dr. Bonville was incredible. He answered all my questions in such an inviting way. He also made the course fun and engaging. I loved his energy, and he always made me feel better about myself. He was also very real with us about medicine and gave us “real world” tips and tricks. He truly made my MS1 experience so much better, and I cannot thank him enough for the positive influence he had on me.”

“Facilitated understanding of background topics related to patient cases, including medical calculators. Extensively explained purpose behind current medical recommendations. Demonstrated effective strategies to perform exams on patients who are “fussy.” Modeled an affable bedside manner for pediatric patients and their families, as well as an efficient neurological assessment.”

“Dr. Bonville has a deep understanding of his field and the cases he’s presented with. He promotes a positive learning environment and allows students to talk through their thought processes. He was incredibly kind and made me feel like an important team member. He treats his patients and their families with respect.”
